Transitioning to a Storage Area Network with StorTrends

Last year, Senior Systems Administrator Adam Felts committed to virtualizing the IT environment at InfoMart. To accomplish this, he first had to implement a backend storage system. Felts requested a quote from Dell since some of their other products were already in use, but the price point was beyond the allocated budget.

Felts searched cost-effective alternatives and found the StorTrends product. The price point was ideal and the features and performance were excellent. Felts's confidence improved upon reading positive customer reviews and the rich history of American Megatrends. Once Felts completed his independent research, the StorTrends solution became the clear choice.

StorTrends Equals Success

InfoMart has had tremendous success adding VMWare to help virtualize its environment, and StorTrends has played a key role in that success. “StorTrends has made a big difference in our IT environment. I get all the features that more expensive boxes provide at a better price point, which makes everyone happy,” said Felts. InfoMart is still in the process of migrating data, but has made good use of the Volume Wizard feature and has experienced a seamless installation and implementation up to this point.
